Tutoring Experience

Over the past 20 years, I have worked with students from GCSE to postgraduate levels, guiding them through core topics like programming, binary logic, and data analysis. My experience includes mentoring students in GCSE Computer Science and A-Level Computing, helping them excel in coding, algorithms, and cybersecurity fundamentals.

During my tenure, I have supported international students pursuing IB Computer Science, offering expertise in areas like machine learning and ethical computing. I have also delivered lectures and one-on-one sessions for advanced topics such as data analytics and artificial intelligence, ensuring students develop practical skills alongside theoretical understanding.

My teaching journey spans prestigious schools and universities, where I have collaborated on designing curriculum content and enhancing students' academic performance. From local institutions in France to online students across the globe, I continue to inspire and guide learners to achieve their educational and professional goals.
